Use of Video Review

In this play, Creighton scores and the Referee awards a goal. After attending to an injury and before the ensuing kickoff, the Referee utilized video review and disallowed the goal for an attacker handball offense.

This is an incorrect use of video review and misapplication of the rule. Video review is not permissible to check for an attacker handball.

Play #4

JMU vs Liberty

Use of Video Review

In this play, JMU scores and the Referee awards a goal. The Referee and Assistant Referee communicate using the Vokkeros and the Referee utilized video review. The Referee allowed the goal after determining that the contact between the players in the middle of the field was not a foul. This is an incorrect use of video review and misapplication of the rule. Video review is not permissible to check for a foul committed by an attacker.

The expected decision is for the Referee and/or Assistant Referee to observe the contact, determine that it clearly impacted the play, and call a foul against JMU in live play.
